One world, one disease

Tuesday 24 June 2008

Educational aims & objectives:

This conference aims to examine some of the effects of climate change on patterns of animal health and the impact on this for humans.

The meeting will provide an understanding of the complexity of the global changes that we face, and will work towards the integrated approach needed to manage the serious problems that threaten animal and human health.

Who should attend?

Those who should attend include veterinary surgeons, microbiologists and virologists, public health physicians, epidemiologists, infectious diseases physicians, climatologists and those with governmental responsibility for managing the animal and human health effects of climate change.
